

The image shows a blank sheet of handwriting practice paper. It features 10 sets of horizontal lines, each set consisting of a solid top line, a dashed midline, and a solid bottom line. A small square marker is positioned at the beginning of each line. The paper is designed for practicing the Carolingian script, specifically the Tours school style from the VIIIth century. The nib used is 2.5mm (2/3/2) with a 25° angle.
